Honorary Counsel

Certain For Next Year

"It looks as though, with the approval and guidance of the faculty, the honor system will go into effect next year as a result of a trial basis," said Don Leonardo, Chairman of the honor system committee, early this week.

This was after a favorable vote by the student body and expression of support by the faculty for Hushburn.

Of those who voted in the referendum, 65% (or 1541) indicated that they favored a system similar to that used in Notre Dame, while 1004 were not. And 94% (or 1777) said that they would abide by any plan that has been proposed. 1012 marked "No."

Of around 3000 students eligible to vote, 71% per cent answered, the First Round, was for the new Council, and the second, Trustee.

Hushburn Pleased Hushburn sent a letter to the vice-presidents of the university, saying that he was highly pleased with the result of the work on the honor system and would do anything he could to see it work.

The next test of the honor system will be approved by the faculties of the individual colleges. The Arts and Letters faculty approved the plan by a vote of 84 to 2 in a meeting held before a general conference that was made to bring certain revisions in the plan as stated.

Faculty Committee

Then a "practical" committee of faculty members would be appointed to work with the Student Council on the ultimate plan. The final step would be approved by the Academic Council. Lovsky said that the council's approval seemed probable.

The Student Council's plan goes into effect, revisions will be made that they are proved necessary in operation.

Lovsky's main worry, however, was that because of the library dedication, theproximity of applicants on campus and the normal time before graduation, there was a chance in getting effective action by the end of the year.

Joint Engineering Council Sponsors Open House

The 1964 Engineering Open House under the aegis of the Joint Engineering Council, will be held from 1:00 to 5:30 p.m. General admission. James Dawes and assistant Bill Hartman turned the plans for the open house over to the engineering students in the last few weeks. Dawes has been put in charge of the project.

The open house has been deferred somewhat from those of past years because of a possible change in the student body. There are now only 27 junior students, compared to 34 in the last program.

The student body in general, has not been as enthusiastic about the open house as the student body from the past years. Dawes said that the open house is going to be held in a new and different way this year. The open house will be held in the Engineering Library, with the door to the library being opened.

Galileo Congress

Notre Dame may add last week's Galileo Congress to its growing list of important accomplishments. The two-day Congress brought together a significantly large number of Galileo scholars from all over the world. The purpose of the Congress was to consider the achievements of Galileo in the light of recent scholarship in the fields of history, philosophy, and science, and to attempt to clear away the few remaining myths that surround the great man. Galileo, once condemned by the Inquisition in the past confused, is now looked upon with openness of mind by the scholar, and perhaps Congress sessions brought out the fact that even today's scholars debate whether Galileo or the Church was more at fault at the time of the trial.

The separate academic character of the Congress points up the leadership Notre Dame has shown in the field of science and in the interplay between philosophy, history, and science in the past few years. This leadership has come not only from the Baha's own faculty by itself but also as a result of the recent improvements in the equipment and facilities made possible by the generosity of the donors. The Congress sessions focused on a synthesis of previous findings rather than on more functional and uninspiring Law.

The sessions were held in the Auditorium. It must also be pointed out that although a great deal of attention and interest was given to the scholarly sessions, there was also an opportunity for the enjoyment of the students. The conference sessions were held in the University Club, and the students were able to enjoy the hospitality of the University Club and to make new acquaintances.

On Academic Progress

The rejuvenated Committee on Academic Progress has announced that beginning next fall the students chosen by the Committee will be given a personal guided course by a professor of the history of science on campus, Mr. Michael Crowe of the General Prog. The University has also been able to estimate the vital field in the past and perhaps the future students will be able to benefit from the work of Mr. Crowe and Fr. Maloney.

One important result of the Congress is that the Library has added a rare first edition of Galileo's works to its Rare Books Collection.

Adopted System

The student body voted in favor of the adoption of an honor system for Notre Dame two weeks ago, and thus removed one of the last obstacles to its adoption. However, the figures in that referendum make it very clear that there are many on campus who have reservations about the ability of the honor system to succeed here.

Since 80% of the student body turned out to vote on the honor system, it is clear that the student realizes its significance and has given it some consideration. Of that 80%, 65% voted in favor. While this is a majority, an honor system clearly requires a change in the philosophy of students, and it may be that a new form of system must be adopted.

Some of the speakers on the honor system, most are willing to give it a try for a one or two year probationary period. However, which system received on this referendum indicates that it was seen as a chance, but the majority of total support indicates that it must prove itself before the student body, after due consideration, will decide whether it is permanently a part of the system.

If the stay-hall system is to work, it is necessary for the students to stay-hall residence is in a bind and that the students who stay-hall must take more personal responsibility for their actions. The students who stay-hall must take more responsibility for their own behavior, and thus the honor system can be made to work.

Stay Hall

Stay-hall residence is in a bind, and if the students are to stay-hall residence is a bind, it should be in a manner that will allow them to succeed.

The above system would allow the students to stay-hall residence to be in a bind and that the students who stay-hall must take more personal responsibility for their actions. The students who stay-hall must take more responsibility for their own behavior, and thus the honor system can be made to work.
Professional Accepts Summer Storage - North America Van Lines has made an agreement with Student Government to handle summer storage. Some of the benefits of the new system will be cheaper rates, higher insurance coverage, professional handling and pickup behind each hall.

Besides the above mentioned improvements another unique feature will be special warehouse bars containing beggars. A minimum amount of insurance coverage will be set at $1,000 for a price of $1.25.

Any contract for summer storage will be transacted between the individual student and North America Van Lines, thus releasing Student Government from any further responsibilities.

Dave Ellis and John Gearen have been asked by North America Van Lines to appoint representatives for summer storage and applications are being accepted by them for a General Chairman and an Accountant. All interested should see Gearen or Ellis for details.

27 Students to Spend Summer in S. A.; CILA Plans Projects in Mexico, Peru, Columbia

In an effort to strengthen our relations with Latin America, Notre Dame’s Council for the International Lay Apostolate will send a total of 27 students to Mexico, Peru and Columbia this summer on work projects.

These students, who were chosen this fall, have some knowledge of building construction and are considered to be representative of Notre Dame and American culture. They are presently taking courses which will give them some orientation in Spanish culture and some idea of the problems they will face this summer.

CILA began during the school year of 1960-61 when several students visited Mexican immigrant in South Bend. In the following year, some of these students wrote to countries in Latin America and found people there who needed jobs done. In the summer of 1962 came the first Notre Dame invasion of Mexico and Peru.

The group is founded on the principle that giving up several weeks a year to visit our South American neighbors is an expression of the love Christ said we should have for all men. But the trip is only beneficent to the students who participate, who not only learn first hand about the savants of Latin America but also make close friendships with the families they feed. Besides this, the CILA trip broadens the frontiers in which a contemporary Catholic can be involved.

The students will be involved with three projects in the three countries. The ten Notre Dame students visiting Peru will work in a hospital in Ica. They will do window frames. Plans for the 14 students visiting Taxacara in Mexico, call for the construction of three new houses. In Bogota, Columbia, three students will work on cooperatives which will be sold to homeless peasants.

Mr. L. Goodrich is presently conducting classes to prepare those volunteers for their summer activities. Besides those classes, there have been well-illustrated lectures by Reverend Russell Huff, C.S.C., who spent four years in Chile.
