More Street Lights

The government of South Bend has finally decided to brighten Notre Dame Avenue. In response to petitions and demonstrations by Notre Dame students, the South Bend Board of Parks and Safety will add two new street lights and boost the number of existing lights on the dimly-lit avenue, which was a source of recent nightly fiddlings on ND students.

In addition, the Board directed a letter to the Fort Wayne park district request that tree branches to the area be trimmed in order to provide further brightness.

The project was recommended by City Engineering as a result of a study made after student complaints.

ND New Member Of Graduate Religion Group

The University of Notre Dame has added a new member to its heritage in the Graduate Studies in Religion. The Council has as its purpose the maintenance of high standards in graduate theological education.

Membership in the council is based on the academic record and the willingness of the student to participate in the life of the council.

The University of Notre Dame therefore becomes the first Catholic university to admit a student to this council.

Other members of the council are: Brown, Chicago, Claremont Graduate School, Columbia, Creighton, Duke, Graduate Theological Union of California, Harvard, Iowa, Michigan, Michigan State, Princeton, University of Notre Dame, University of Southern California, Vanderbilt, and Yale.

Card Stunts

Suspended

Father Charles J. McCarragher, President-Founder of Student Affairs, has announced that day for the spring semester. The committee and looking at thepurple and gold colors, the members of the committee have decided to do away with the stunt for the rest of the year.

The committee cited lack of cooperation and support, and the main reason for suspension of the stunt is the fact that the stunt requires the participation of a large number of students.

In the future, the committee will continue to support the stunt, but only if all students participate in the stunt.

The committee is currently working on new ideas for student activities.

Campus, Geographical Clubs

Working At Slow Pace

The 20-world geographical clubs of Notre Dame have been working at a slow pace this year. A few of the clubs have met regularly, but many have not met at all.

The only geographical clubs that have met regularly are the three geographical clubs, the Physical Geography Club, the Social Geography Club, and the Economic Geography Club.

The Physical Geography Club has met regularly to discuss the physical geographical aspects of the world. The Social Geography Club has met regularly to discuss the social geographical aspects of the world. The Economic Geography Club has met regularly to discuss the economic geographical aspects of the world.

While the situation with Negro minority groups seems to be improving, the problems with another minority group are still very acute. This group is composed of migrant workers and ex-migrant workers trying to adapt for the first time to urban living. The situation of these people is described by Mr. John Van Ness in a few United States. Real estate developers make millions, but despite the laws there are problems. Several cases of housing discrimination are before the Housing Commission of the Community Rights Commission.

Most white residents still don't want Negroes in their neighborhoods. But many of them would not even realize that Negroes are moving into a neighborhood. And in the housing market, there has been a mass exodus of Negro families in white neighborhoods.

Employers in South Bend are largely non-discriminatory. President of the Law School, a member of the Fair Employment Practice Commission in South Bend, points out there have been very few signed complaints against employers. Most of the problems, he said, can be worked out by talking to employees, educating them concerning the practice of fair employment. In some cases, some discrimination remains among younger employers and even in some unionized groups still may be awakened to the improving situation so that they will not discriminate openly on the points that have been brought to their attention.

While in education is good, there is great room for improvement in the face of all the segregation. Civil Rights leaders in the community are seeking to have the law enforced in the schools so that its district will not perpetuate the present Negro segregation. There is considerable opposition, not only from the parents of Negroes who want to keep the schools in their present, convenient, neighborhood. Another problem until over half of the students at the South Bend schools now have Negro teachers, because almost all the Negro teachers are located in the Negro neighborhoods. Many are the desires of the students, too. Negro teachers in many instances do not want to teach in white schools. A few students are willing to help to educate the prejudiced white students.

Impressions FromInnsbruck

Tripe and we all went to Vienna and left Father Segal behind with Professor Loud's children, who had to return to the train we were staying in various sleepers, and the next morning landed us to a youth hostel in the Vienna line. Vienna is a wonderful attractive city, and its beauty is not the same as London's with her grey mountains, or Salzburg's with her blue hills. Vienna has no natural beauty. It is a big city and clean-cut. The man who made Vienna were matters with a great deal of their creation. The rest is wonderful. It is perfectly the point we would not prolong a week stand it if it didn't have at once one moral perfecting.

—Herman Melville

The problem of time caught up with us as we began to schedule. The... Why are we here? Someone said, "To become citizens of the world, the man who wants to advance into their country and adversary? Perhaps for some reasons they have an American Institute on the man who makes an American Institute, Austrian students studying English, French, German. Why are the foreign professors so anxious to teach us? Why are the students, political, cultural, and economic heads come to speak to us? Do they feel the world's future rests with young Americans? Maybe that's why when listening the word "American" changes the destination of the car to exactly where we're going, or has the driver stopped to buy us a beer, or maybe lunch. Maybe that's why an address is written down of a solicitor to "America." However, I'm glad of it, proud to be a part. We're the lucky ones, and I hope we can someday repay them.

Irish Easily Conquer "Mediocre" Navy Team

by Terry Mohoney

The odds were small - rather than great - for Notre Dame against Navy. It was a mighty Irish squad against a much weaker foe. The first half, Notre Dame scored three touchdowns, including a field goal, and another to start the second half. Navy, on the other hand, scored nothing. The final score was 23-7 in favor of the Irishmen.

On a field behind the Ryan Center there gathers every day a group of about 35 men to play some rugby, which is their business. This contingent is the Notre Dame rugby team, though one might not believe it. Absent from the scene is a real coach in the intended sense of the term, and student managers running all over the place. You might think, then, that these clowns—each in his makeshift practice regalia—are just out having a little fun. Don't be so silly, buddy; these guys play for keeps.

On any weekend just what makes rugby such a winner around here? Since the ruggers are independent of the athletic department, they can do what they want to, more or less. It's like a fraternal organization— the players give everything for each other and the team. "Other teams don't have the spirit we do," says Dr. Fear, the team moderator. "nor are they conditioned like we are," he added.

This fall the club has had to replace most of its founding fathers via graduation. On a team where there are not superstars, all seem to have a share in the credit.

Last spring the Irish were thought to be among the best—if not the best—in the country with their 18-1 record. Saturday the Irish ran their fall record to 4-0 with a 13-0 win over previously undefeated Wisconsin. John Beding's first half try -- a rugby touchdown -- and Jim Tooney's kick sealed the tilt, as things turned out.

Everyone is picking—so the staff has decided to pit their much beloved perceptive abilities in their own football bowl. With Dan (the colon) Murray setting the pace with his blended coin they're calling. Dan, who actually did use a coin, is VOICE news editor. Others who sided their reputations were Editor Bob Lumpkins (Lumpy Hobert), Managing Editor Lou (The Pollack) Baranovsky, Sports Editor Bob (Longshot) Campbell, and HNT (Express) Dwyre. Also News Staffer Steve (The Stargazer) Fieldhaus and Dick Stepanski via graduation. On a team where there are not superstars, all seem to have a share in the credit.
