Taste Of ND For Prepsers

by Jim Fulpin

Back to school is no more an annual event than the annual gathering of Notre Dame fans, who were all out in full force to enjoy a taste of the Notre Dame football experience.

The University's official tailgate program is one that has grown in popularity each year, with fans from all over the country coming to Notre Dame to enjoy the food, fellowship, and atmosphere.

The tailgate area is located outside the stadium and includes a variety of food vendors, music, and activities. Fans can purchase food, drinks, and souvenirs, and there are often live bands and tailgate games to keep the party going.

The Notre Dame football program is one of the most successful and storied programs in college football, and fans come from all over the world to experience the excitement and tradition of a Notre Dame game.

During the two-year period, the stadium will be open to the public for special events, including a day of open practice for the Notre Dame football team. Fans will have the opportunity to see the players in action and take photos with their favorite players.

The Notre Dame football program is one that is known for its hard work and dedication, and fans will have the chance to see firsthand the work that goes into preparing for a game and the determination it takes to win.

The tailgate program is a great way for fans to experience the Notre Dame football atmosphere and get a taste of what it's like to be a part of the Notre Dame community.

Stay-Hall—An Up-to-Date Appraisal

Last spring the Notre Dame student body attempted a novel experiment: a Stay-Hall system introducing all four classes. Although it is too early to conclude as to the success or failure of the system, enough information is in as of the accomplishment of the three upperclassmen. However, in a project of this sort, neither the students nor the faculty could have been prepared for the results. Students were not disappointed with the Stay-Hall plan as they found the advantages in it were far outweighed by the disadvantages. Furthermore, the Stay-Hall system is currently being recommended for the second year.

Before any evaluation of Stay-Hall can be made, an understanding of the advantages and the disadvantages of the Stay-Hall system is necessary. The fundamental goal of the Stay-Hall plan is to establish a better balance between students' residence life and their classroom studies. This balance, commonly attained by setting up the home away from home, is more difficult to coordinate. It is hoped that students in the Stay-Hall system will enjoy better opportunities for an all-around experience in university life by being in residence all year. Stay-Hall is likely to be less expensive for housing than the old system. Furthermore, students will be less subject to the distractions and problems of commuting. One of the groups of students most likely to be benefited by the Stay-Hall system, the commuter, will be able to live and work in the residence hall full-time.

The Stay-Hall system is also an advantage from the faculty viewpoint. Space problems have persisted in the past, but this may be corrected by having all upperclassmen live in the residence hall. Later, when the classes are in their full strength, the problem will be easier to handle.

Besides these advantages, there were also many special advantages for freshmen expected of the Stay-Hall system. Stay-Hall will be an excellent opportunity for a larger number of freshmen to combine campus life with upperclassmen. Freshmen would be able to have the advantage of a more intellectual atmosphere, based on the presence of upperclassmen.

The Stay-Hall plan was outlined to the student body for the first time in the fall of 1963. Since then, it has been implemented with some success. The Stay-Hall system has been adopted by the student body and the faculty as a whole. This is probably the most important factor in the success of the Stay-Hall system. The next step will be to evaluate the Stay-Hall system and to recommend any necessary changes or improvements.

LUNA: In Retrospect

by Mike McCarthy, LUNA Chairman

Now that the LUNA assembly has been assembled, the tables and chairs packed away, perhaps it would be in order to evaluate the impact of the 1963-64 LUNA assembly on the community of LUNA.

In the fall, the LUNA assembly was designated (1) to dramatize the realities of the world situation to the Notre Dame and St. Mary's community; (2) to transcend the intellectual community into the life of the campus; and (3) to bring Notre Dame and St. Mary's closer together. This was perhaps the most important goal of the LUNA assembly, and it was carried out with a meaningful and successful effort, despite some difficulties and the inevitable temporary setbacks.

One of the most impressive aspects of the LUNA assembly was the involvement of faculty and students in the various activities. This involvement was an indication of the success of the assembly. The activities were designed to be open to all students and faculty, and the goal was to create an atmosphere of cooperation and understanding. The LUNA assembly was a reflection of the efforts of the students, faculty, and community to work together for a better understanding and appreciation of each other.

The overall impact of the LUNA assembly was a positive one, and it is anticipated that the benefits of the assembly will continue to be felt in the future. The LUNA assembly was a success, and it is hoped that future assemblies will continue to build on this success.
Play Review

by Bob Downing

"Noye’s Fludde," Benjamin Britten’s musical version of the 12th century Chaucer cycle miracle play, was presented Thursday evening through Sunday by the DAC Music Dept. during the formal opening to a lively contemporary score. Mr. Britten chose the Biblical theme to the 20th century audience, preserving the performance. Prefiguring the performance, an expository essay (by Robert E. Brawley) appeared in The Daily. The concert is scheduled to offer a new and exciting way to experience the Grail legend, with particular emphasis on the imagery and symbolism of the text. The theme of the performance, Mrs. Britten and Miss Britten, isounced in the concert, with Mrs. Britten describing the role of the Grail and Miss Britten the role of the Grail’s mother, the Lady of the Lake. The performance will focus on the Grail’s journey through time, with particular attention to the Grail’s role as a symbol of spiritual and physical renewal. The performance will also feature a projection of images and symbols from the Grail legend, as well as a multimedia presentation of the Grail’s history and significance. The performance is open to the public and will be held in the DAC Music Hall, located at 123 Main Street. The performance is free and open to the public, but reservations are recommended due to limited seating. For more information, please contact the DAC Music Dept. at 123-4567.
ND Hockey: The Word Is Optimism

In just three years, interesting times have made the Irish a force in the hockey arena. Two years ago the Irish were 0-7-7, last season the record improved to 2-0 and this year the Irish have won the first two games of the season. The Irish, led by Mike Leiter, have started the season on a high note, scoring 10 goals in two games.

Aside from the season opener against St. Patrick, the Irish have dominated their opponents, outscoring them by a combined score of 10-2. With such a strong start, the Irish have their sights set on a successful season.

No Place To Practice, ND Skiers Have Rough Year

The Notre Dame skiing team, which has struggled in recent years, was shut out of the NCAA championships this year. Despite the disappointment, the team continues to work hard and improve their skills.

Furthermore, the team is looking to the future with optimism, hoping to turn their fortunes around in the upcoming season.
