The University of Notre Dame, once an obscure school in the northern Indiana wilderness, has become in little more than a century a great institution of higher learning, recognized the world over for the high caliber of its teaching, research, and public service.

Founded in 1842 by the Holy Cross Fathers, a French missionary community, Notre Dame is now governed by a predominantly lay Board of Trustees. The chairman of the Board of Trustees is Edmund A. Stephan, an alumnus of the University and a Chicago, Ill., attorney. The president of Notre Dame is the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., who has served since 1952 as the University's sixteenth president.

The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., whose statue stands beside the Administration Building, was ordained in the United States, is found today on campus, amidst more than 80 other campus structures, highlighted by the magnificent Notre Dame Memorial Library.

The first president of the University, the Rev. Edward F. Sorin, C.S.C., whose statue stands at the beginning of the Administration Building mall, began his school for boys on the site of a log chapel. A replica of this log chapel, which served as a missionary outpost of the first priest ordained in the United States, is found today on campus, amidst more than 80 other campus structures, highlighted by the magnificent Notre Dame Memorial Library.

Now well into its second century of service to the nation and the Church, the University consists of a Graduate School, the Notre Dame Law School (the oldest Catholic law school in the United States), and four undergraduate colleges: Arts and Letters, Science, Engineering, and Business Administration. Specialized units within the University include the Louband Furniture, an internationally known facility for radiation chemistry research; the Medieval Institute; the Jacques Maritain Center, the Center for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society; the Institute for Advanced Religious Studies; and the Center for Continuing Education.

Father Hesburgh heads a faculty of 604 persons who hold advanced degrees from virtually every major university in the world. Laymen predominate on the faculty which numbers about 35 priests and religious, most of them members of the Congregation of Holy Cross. While Notre Dame is Catholic in its origin, traditions, philosophy and atmosphere, other denominations have always been represented in its faculty and student body.

Research is an important mission of every university, and grants totaling more than $17,000,000 annually are testimony to the quality of Notre Dame's research program. Lloyd scientists are engaged in a variety of projects dealing with the biological, medical, and social sciences, including heart disease, nutrition and germfree human surgery. The University's research in radiation chemistry, the most extensive underway on any college or university campus, is centered in a new $2,200,000 Radiation Research Building erected by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. Other major areas of research include nuclear physics, polymer chemistry, international relations, aeronautical and metallurgical engineering and the social sciences. Expanding all of Notre Dame's research projects is a new Computing Center, built around a UNIVAC 1107.

Religion has never been "extracurricular" at Notre Dame. Sacred Heart Church, the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes and the many chapels and shrines all serve as reminders that religion and morality are the mark of the Notre Dame man. Students attending the University have an unparalleled opportunity for spiritual development. Courses in theology (not required of non-Catholic students) are included in the curricula of all the colleges. For it is Notre Dame's conviction, today as always, that it is not enough for a University to develop professional competence in a young man. To it must be added a sense of moral and social responsibility which will fortify his family, professional and civic life. Notre Dame students are heavily committed to the Church's social apostolate, which received renewed emphasis during the Second Vatican Council. During a recent school year some 3000 students were involved in tutoring disadvantaged youngsters in the South Bend area, and the percentage of Notre Dame graduates who enter the Peace Corps has been remarkably high.

Notre Dame's thousand acre campus, with its twin lakes and many wooded areas, is virtually a self-sustaining city with its own post office, power plant, television and radio stations and campus hotel. The Morris Inn, the University with a full-time staff of 2,285, is one of the largest employers in the area. Its present annual operating budget is about $35 million. However, Notre Dame's endowment of $60 million is one of the smallest among the nation's major private universities.

In September, 1967, Notre Dame launched an ambitious $52 million, five-year program designed to achieve development in depth of the University, particularly on the graduate level. Principle elements are the University's endowment for faculty salaries, its graduate and research programs, and its new campus construction. The program is called "SUMMA: Notre Dame's Greatest Challenge."

The Administration Building (36), surrounded by its famed golden domes and statue of Our Lady, was erected in 1879 after fire destroyed its predecessor. Also known as the Main Building, it houses the office of the president and the other principal administrative offices of the University. Murals by Luigi Gregori depicting the life of Christopher Columbus can be seen along its first-floor corridor. It is a tradition that students do not use the front steps of the building until the weekend of their graduation.

Sacred Heart Church (29) is the center of campus religious life. Built in 1871, its Gothic spire overlooks the oldest canal in North America. Of particular beauty are its stained glass windows imported from Liéman in France, the baroque altar in Our Lady Chapel, the woodwork in the nave, the statues of saints, the stained glass windows, and the marble altars.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST
Some of Notre Dame's buildings and facilities, because of their historic character, recent construction or for other reasons, are of special interest to visitors. Among them are:

The Administration Building (36), surrounded by its famed golden domes and statue of Our Lady, was erected in 1879 after fire destroyed its predecessor. Also known as the Main Building, it houses the office of the president and the other principal administrative offices of the University. Murals by Luigi Gregori depicting the life of Christopher Columbus can be seen along its first-floor corridor. and the "Pieta" by the late Prof Ivan Mestrovic of Notre Dame. The body of the late John Cardinal O'Hara, C.S.C., former president of the University, is interred in a chapel to the left of the main altar.

The Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes (28) is a replica of the world-famous shrine at Lourdes in France. Completed in 1896, it is a center of devotion where students, faculty members and visitors pause to pray day and night. The Confraternity of the Immaculate Conception of Our Lady of Lourdes, whose offices are located to the rear of the Grotto, distributes Lourdes water throughout the United States.

The O'Shaughnessy Hall of Liberal and Fine Arts (56) is the home of Notre Dame's College of Arts and Letters. The stained glass windows in its Great Hall represent the seven liberal arts of the ancients. O'Shaughnessy Hall houses the University Gallery whose fine collection of painting and sculpture can be viewed from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The building, dedicated in 1953, is the gift of Mr. I. A. O'Shaughnessy and the late Mrs. O'Shaughnessy of St. Paul, Minn.

Nieuwland Science Hall (52) provides classrooms and laboratories for Notre Dame's chemistry, physics and mathematics departments. Occupying a portion of the building is an "atom smasher" which is central to the University's nuclear physics research. The building, which was dedicated in 1953, honors the late Rev. Julius A. Nieuwland, C.S.C., who developed the formula for synthetic rubber and founded THE AMERICAN MIDLAND NATURALIST which is published by the University.

The University Dining Halls serve the student body and provide banquet facilities for up to one thousand guests. The North Dining Hall (60), which opened in 1957, provides six attractive dining rooms and basement storage space for forty carloads of food. A cafeteria, open to visitors, is located in the South Dining Hall (17). Its hours are 7 to 10:30 a.m., 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., and 4:45 to 7 p.m. Snacks are available at The Huddle, in LaFortune Student Center, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Morris Inn (21) is an air-conditioned, 92-room hotel operated by the University at the entrance to the campus. It is the gift of the late Ernest M. Morris and Mrs. Morris of South Bend, Ind. Alumni and friends of Notre Dame are always welcome at The Morris Inn. Its dining room is open from 7 to 10:30 a.m., from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., and from 5:30 until 9:30 p.m.

The new Athletic and Convocation Center (79), with its twin arenas totaling more than 400,000 square feet, is the hub of campus sports competition. One arena has a seating capacity of 12,000 for basketball, convocations and other special events. The other includes an indoor track, a baseball infield, an ice skating rink and facilities for a variety of sports.

The Honor Concept expresses in a single sentence the entire commitment of the Notre Dame student:

“As a Notre Dame Student, I pledge honesty in all my academic work and will not tolerate dishonesty in my fellow students.”

The Concept captures the meaning of the ideal of Honor, for it depends ultimately on the individual’s personal avowal of academic honesty, in face of all difficulties. Its development at the University is thus hindered by the lack of commitment to honesty on the part of some, and the lack of concern on the part of others. Yet the Concept, initiated by the students, faculty and administration together, is a common effort for a common good and its growth is the responsibility of all.

A functioning Honor Concept can be not only a source of pride in itself to the University, but also a means to the attainment of ideals of individual and university life. Since it confronts the individual with the challenge to be honest with himself and with others, it lays open the opportunity to attain a new level in human dignity. Since an individual student cannot realistically accept the value of honesty unless it is very nature, unites all students into a community bound together by commitment to honesty. Finally, since the Honor Concept cannot function without the authority of the faculty and administration in academic matters, nor without their support of the student effort, it implies a closer understanding, mutual trust, and mutual respect among the elements of the Notre Dame community.

Art Gallery Calendar

WEST GALLERY

August 25—October 27, 1968

THE CHANGE OF PERCEPTION, THE PERCEPTION OF CHANGE. Under the sponsorship of the United Church of Christ Conference at Notre Dame, this exhibit juxtaposes themes and styles in paintings, graphics, and sculpture, illustrating contrast and variety in the history of art. The works are from the Art Gallery's permanent collection.

November 3—December 29, 1968

EGYPTIAN ART. For the first time in its recent history the Art Gallery will present a large group of Egyptian Sculpture and art-objects. The combined efforts of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wolfe will make up the loans for this exhibit.

January 5—February 23, 1969

PAINTINGS FROM THE BAKER COLLECTION. Keenly responsive to subtle variations and movements within contemporary endeavors, Richard Brown Baker collects a wide representation of examples which bring out variety and contrast. The exhibition will include paintings and sculpture by such artists as Jasper Johns, Robert Rauschenberg, Claes Oldenburg, Victor Vasarely, Richard Anuskiewicz, and David Smith.
March 2—April 13, 1969

THE AGE OF VASARI. After two years of anticipation by scholars and critics, this major exhibition will stress the characteristics of the provocative 16th century school of painting and sculpture, the Mannerists. The show, filling both sides of the gallery, will feature masterpieces from numerous American and European collections.

April 20—June 29, 1969

RECENT ACQUISITIONS. It has been three years since the University brought together a large grouping of recent acquisitions to the permanent collection. There have been notable additions and the best of these will be selected for the current show.

July 1—October 15, 1969

THE MADONNA AND CHILD IN ROMANESQUE ART. Mr. Eric DeKolb has kindly and generously consented to lend his large collection of Romanesque sculpture to Notre Dame for the Summer of 1969. This will include many images from France and Spain of the 12th Century or near that time, all of which depict the Virgin Mary and her Child.

EAST GALLERY

September 15—November 3, 1968

CONTEMPORARY PRINTS. Mr. William J. Plunkett, a dealer in contemporary prints, has kindly consented to lend Notre Dame a significant group of graphics done by artists working in England, France, and the United States.

November 10—December 29, 1968

DON VOGL. A faculty member of the Notre Dame Art Department, Don Vogl continues to develop style through his work in painting and graphics. Currently on leave, this exhibition represents some of his most recent work.

January 12—February 23, 1969

STILL LIFE FROM THE PERMANENT COLLECTION. One of the oldest traditions in art, still life, or nature mort is still lively in our time, though it takes new directions. This exhibition is planned to show the contrast. Earlier painters might faithfully copy the object. The painter of today might merely stick a photograph of the object on his painting and do little further to it.

KONSTANTIN MILONADIS. The distinguished artist in residence at Notre Dame continues to attract wide attention through his kinetic constructions. His works reflect the rapid changes in our technological world of mobility, and more whimsically might be called “Icons of a Scientific Age.”

STUDENT EXHIBITION. This selection of paintings, drawings, graphics and sculpture is a review exhibition for graduating seniors and graduate students.

June 15—July 30, 1969

ONE CENT LIFE. The Art Gallery of Ball State University has kindly loaned this group of lithographs. The poet, Walasse Ting, friend of many contemporary artists, planned this group of exciting lithographs that unite the image with verse.

We’re as Close to You as Your Golf Course...
(Well, almost. We’re right across the street.) and that’s as close as we could get without infringing on the 7th green. Our newest banking office is right across from the Notre Dame golf course at the corner of Michigan Street and Angela Boulevard. So stop in and see us. We’re on the way downtown and if you plan to do some banking or pay a bill, we could save you a trip...and maybe save you some money.
