All out for the annual house-cleaning.

The Four Kinds of Freshmen.
Last week’s classification of the Freshmen caused some excitement. Some explanations will follow as soon as it is digested. It follows:

1. Those who have led good lives because they love God;
2. Those who love God, but have slipped into some bad habits;
3. Those who are naturally good, but give little thought to God;
4. Those who are in the ditch and are content to wallow there.

How They Check In.
Numbers 1 and 2 in the above classification will become daily communicants within the first two weeks of school; number four will be dragging in from the Mission till Trinity Sunday; but #3 it will take a Japanese earthquake to move number three.

Football Dope.
Two of the hardest games on the schedule are only a month away. Last year injuries were a strong contributing factor in the defeat of the best team in the country. Pray all injuries away (and remember besides, that Hail Mary’s have won many a game for Notre Dame — and that it was a non-Catholic player who called for them on the field at Atlanta last year).

Human Respect.
If you’re not ashamed to cross the campus for breakfast at 10 o’clock, you shouldn’t be ashamed to drop into the Walsh Hall chapel on the way and start the day with God.
