Golf is o.k. if it gets you out in the open, under the sun, for a couple of hours a day. It's not o.k. if it keeps you from doing your duty.

You're here, on your parents' money, not to be a Lawson Little or a Johnny Rivolta. You're here to improve your mind and to develop your character.

"Spring Fever" isn't a disease that excuses from the finals in June. And God doesn't take Spring Fever very seriously either.

Get in your golf, but keep up in your studies, and keep at your religious program these days!

Develop Your Forgetter.

You hear a lot in the classroom about learning to remember. There's an important science, too, of How and What to Forget!

Forget real injuries that you suffer from others. Don't nurse a grouch. It doesn't pay—spiritually, morally, mentally, or physically. Heroes, before God and man, are those who do good to their enemies. Forgetting injuries is a sure way of forgiving and of being forgiven by Christ.

Forget injuries that you fancy others inflict upon you. Your lot in life is most probably a very fortunate one. Self-pity brings you only grief. People don't "get" you wrong. Prof's don't have it in for you. Rectors and prefects aren't always on your trail. Your fellowmen don't dislike you for no good reason at all.

Forget your failures. Remember only what caused them—and try to avoid that cause in the future. It's much better to try hard and to make mistakes than never to try through lack of courage.

Forget sins after they have been confessed. Remember only in a general way that you are a sinner and that you must depend upon God's grace and upon fleeing sinful occasions. You don't please God by mulling over sordid details, and, be sure, you don't do yourself any good either.

Forget self for God and fellowman. It will help make your conversation interesting. It will make you a real Christian. The root of all evil is inordinate love of self. The root of most nervous troubles is over-absorption in self. Self-love makes mon dull and puny and fearful.

Lot yourself go for God and fellowman, and watch how other necessary things follow after!

Novena of Masses for George Wirry.

At the request of the Athletic Managers, nine masses are being said for George Wirry at 6:30 in Sorin Hall. The Novena started today and will end April 6. All students are welcome.

NEW shipment of missals just arrived. --J. Dougherty's condition critical.

PRAYERS: (deceased) two friends of Chuck Sweeney (Carr.); Ill, Rev. J. J. Boyle, .J.S.C., president Portland University, Portland, Oregon; Bob O'Brien (Badin); Jim Lougherty (Badin); mother of Tom Dooey (Badin); two friends of Chuck Sweeney (Carr.); Father William R. Charles; father of Maurice Schafer (Alum.); friend of Dan Curley.