Stick This In Your Grip.

You'll be busy tonight scrubbing your room for the man that takes it next year. You'll be tossing trunks down the stairs, making whoopee, talking long. You'll be calling Mishawaka Mabel for a second goodbye, to make sure she has your address. So you won't have a minute to read this Bulletin. But stick it in your grip.

If you want to continue developing into a better Catholic, follow this five-point program this summer:

1. Be faithful to your morning and evening prayers. Say them the old-fashioned way: on your knees, at your bed.
3. Go to confession regularly; if you need it, use the first opportunity.
4. Continue your Nine First Fridays. June's is this Friday.
5. In regard to the virtue of purity, recall the instruction on the back of your Eucharistic Calendar.

All year the Adoration Chapel was crowded. Your voices at the Grotto in May were louder than ever before. Your two best friends have been Jesus and Mary. Keep this in mind all summer. Keep in mind what you wrote when you answered the question: "What has helped you most this year in the fight against temptation?"

"Holy Communion, without a doubt, I could see it work."

"Association with good companions, and a death in the family, as well as growing common sense."

"Quick resistance before the temptation becomes great."

"No reading of bad literature."

"The fact that God has been so good to me."

But stress, this summer, the positive things. Life isn't just avoiding occasions of sin and fighting temptation. You should spread your faith by answering questions. You should help the poor. You should, perhaps, be kinder.

Thanks, everyone, for the teamwork. Special thanks to the Bulletin helpers. And may God and Our Lady bless and protect each one of you!
