Two frogs once fell into a pail of cream. The cream was deep and the sides of the pail were steep and slippery. For several hours they swam around trying desperately to climb out, until one of the frogs gasped, "I give up!" He sank and was drowned.

The other frog, however, kept on gamely struggling and splashing until eventually he found himself sitting comfortably on a large lump of butter.

These two frogs are typical of the two classes into which those students fighting temptations can be divided today.

One student will struggle against sin for a time, but after some slips will gasp, "I give up", and sink into despair. Quitter, he may even become critical and bitter.

Another student, however, will keep on gamely struggling. He will avoid occasions of sin, of course. Then, if temptations do come, he will regard them as a chance to prove his love for God, and also as a means to become stronger.

His very struggle against temptation (getting up immediately, if he should slip) and his daily use of Christ's own strength in the Eucharist will finally make his will stronger, his heart stouter and his soul happier.

Get It Off Your Chest.

If vacation proved a stumbling block to your good resolutions, come back to God without delay. If you have a load on your chest, get it off tonight, and tomorrow return to the happy practice of daily Communion.

War Chest.

The Sunday before vacation, the collection was for the relief of European Catholic college students, who are prisoners of war, refugees or interned.

The collection was more than the usual Sunday collection. It amounted to $82.01, which, nevertheless, averages only about three and a half cents apiece for the 2600 campus students.

The Bulletin promised $10.00 from its Poor Fund. Subscribers have sent in $8.00 in gifts of $5.00, $2.00 and $1.00. Thus, the fund amounts to an even $100.01.

Mr. Edward Kirchner, head of Pax Romana, and of the International Federation of Catholic Students, which will distribute the contribution through its international organization, visited here over the week-end. He is very grateful for your aid. He says that your money can help various suffering students; for example, that group of Czechoslovakian students marooned in a certain French city. When Hitler invaded Czechoslovakia, they fled to France, and later fought with the French army. This action really made them traitors to Germany, according to the terms of the German law imposed on the occupied territory. The fall of France found them fleeing again, but now they cannot get out of France. If they are discovered and handed over to Germany, a traitor's death, by firing-squad or beheading, awaits them.

Do any of you wish to contribute any more, say a cent and a half to bring your average up to at least five cents apiece? This fund, remember, will aid Catholic college students who have the same ambitions, ideals and love of life as you. If positions were reversed, what would you wish the Czech students to do?
