What is the value of criticism, or as described in the colloquial "griping"? It is supposed that every action must have a definite purpose—at least today—or what good does society derive from it? Griping which is a lower form of criticism does really have some value, for it is the first sign of disgust or insecurity which eventually, under careful guidance, reaches the "holy" state of criticism. It is true that griping may be caused by a rather uncomfortable emotional disturbance brought about by such things as classes, girls, and weather. But, it seems, that it arrives rather because of a basic disgust with prevalent and all-too-ordinary conditions.

Since criticism's ultimate aim is perfection, the action becomes justified, and the primary state of griping can be allowed to exist because it may evolve into the healthy state of criticism. This latter level cannot be shaken by a high grade, pleasant dates, or a sunny day—it remains in spite of exterior conditions to expose the foolishness and insipidness of human beings, their institutions, and environment.

One who is truly disturbed with the mediocrity and stupidity that rules the present age will never, or are they able, to relinquish their right of criticism. Nothing will satisfy them but the perfection of society—this is why most saints die dissatisfied with the world—of course, we agree, that everyone who criticizes is not a saint.

It is a very good sign that there are students on this campus who care enough about Notre Dame to advance intelligent critiques of our situation. For the most part, we feel, that this is done with sincere intentions and an objective attitude. Therefore, we encourage this inspection of the essentials of our society, and sincerely hope that it never ceases—even after graduation.

Easter vacation is with us once more and with it comes an opportunity to demonstrate a true Notre Dame spirit. What is Notre Dame spirit? First of all because it is spirit, it is something which is essentially mysterious. Webster's defines it as "the breath of life" and this probably comes as close as possible to the nature of spirit. Spirit then is the life of Notre Dame. It is that principle which makes the University live and grow.

But like all principles of life, spirit is perhaps best known in its manifestations. What then are the important manifestations of a Notre Dame spirit? Since spirit is tied up with the life of the University, it first should be concerned with the growth and improvement of the school. This does not mean mere physical growth but refers to an overall spiritual and intellectual growth. Secondly, spirit must be concerned with preventing or avoiding any destruction of the existing life of the University. These are the basic manifestations of a real Notre Dame spirit.

How does this apply to Easter vacation? Very easily. Within a few days most of us will be heading home or to some vacation spot such as Florida. We will be on display in either case before many people who look at us as examples of Notre Dame men and therefore as embodying the spirit of Notre Dame. If we manifest our "spirit" by creating a disturbance on the train or in some Florida bistro, we are not manifesting a true Notre Dame spirit. We have neglected the very things which should be most important to a real Notre Dame spirit. But make no mistake about it. No one is perfect and this goes without saying. More often then not the fellow who has "one too many" or who openly "gripes" about the University before other people is not maliciously intending to destroy or even harm the spirit of Notre Dame. He does so only because of his human weakness. But one has to be quite dubious about some Notre Dame students who are constantly acting as a destructive force to the University. They simply can not have the University's best interests at heart. They are thinking only of themselves, and, indeed, not very well of themselves.

Which class do you fall into? If you belong, as most of us do, to the first class then be extra careful of your conduct over Easter. If you belong to the second class nothing much anybody could say would have any meaning.

THE 1957-58 BASKETBALL SEASON

March 28, 1958
John Jordan

Coach Johnny Jordan led his Notre Dame team to 24 victories this past season and has now accumulated 124 wins in his seven years at Notre Dame. His teams have dropped but 56 games over this same seven-year stretch, five of the losses coming this year. This year's team finished seventh in the final Associated Press poll and eighth in the final United Press tabulation.

This 1957-58 season just completed marks the third time in the last five years that Jordan's teams have won over 20 games, and this year's victory total of 24 is the highest in the history of the school.

Jordan's two wins in the three NCAA encounters two weeks ago brings his total in NCAA play to eight wins and four losses. This marks the third time in four tries that a Jordan-coached Notre Dame team has gone to the finals in NCAA competition.

Although the bonus shot after a successful free throw attempt was eliminated following the first six fouls in each half this year, Jordan's team became the highest scoring team in Notre Dame basketball history. This year's team scored 2374 points for an average of close to 82 points per game. Last year's team scored ten less points in one less game with the benefit of the bonus free throw rule.

Jordan enrolled at Notre Dame in 1931 and became active in both football and basketball during his freshman year. The next three years he concentrated entirely on basketball and captained the 1934-35 Notre Dame team. During his three years of varsity play, Notre Dame compiled a 49-19 record. Shortly after his graduation, he accepted the head coaching job at Mount Carmel High School in Chicago, Ill., and he remained there through the 1949 season except for his three-year term as a Navy lieutenant during World War II. Three times he directed his Mount Carmel teams to the Catholic League Championship and won the City Championship twice. During his stay at Mount Carmel, he attracted attention as one of the nation's top prep coaches.

During the 1950-51 season he directed Loyola of Chicago's basketball forces to a 15-14 record and returned to Notre Dame to take up the head coaching job at the beginning of the 1951-52 season. His first team won 16 of 26 ball games, and with many of the players from his first team he led Notre Dame to the quarterfinals of the NCAA championship the next two years.

In 1952-53, under Jordan's most capable leadership, Notre Dame won 19 of 24 encounters before losing a close contest to Indiana, the eventual tourney champion, in the quarterfinal round. The next year, the Irish, sporting a 21-2 record going into the quarterfinals at Iowa City, clipped the defending champion Hoosiers by one point in the Friday night game but were then upset by a hot-shooting Penn State quintet in the final game of the regionals the next night. For Jordan's and his team's outstanding performance during the 1953-54 season, the Metropolitan Sports Writers named him the "College Basketball Coach of the Year."

Jordan's team slipped a little bit the next year to a still very creditable 14-10 record and fell to a 9-15 mark during the 1955-56 campaign. But he led Notre Dame back into national prominence last year as the Irish ran up 20 wins against only eight defeats and finished 16th in the final Associated Press Poll.

Jim Gibbons

Jim Gibbons, in his second year as assistant basketball coach, has served as the chief aid to Johnny Jordan and has also handled the freshmen basketball players during the past two seasons.

Gibbons, a guard on the Notre Dame basketball teams from 1950-53, returned to Notre Dame from Mount Carmel High School in Chicago where he coached both baseball and basketball.

During his playing days for the Irish, Gibbons was known for his defensive ability and his adeptness at dribbling. Throughout his three years of varsity competition, the Chicagoan scored 210 points and was one of the team's most consistent foul shooters.

Upon graduation from the College of Liberal Arts in 1953, Gibbons served a two-year hitch in the Army prior to taking up his coaching career at Mount Carmel. Gibbons, who also was a pitcher-outfielder for the Irish baseball team, serves as assistant coach to baseball coach Jake Kline during the spring months.
"When your ability is the same as the other team's and all other things are equal there is one thing that decides the winner, that is, 'ex carde,' from the heart."

Any player who has ever played under Coach Jordan will recognize these words. After playing three years for him a player probably hears the expression over a hundred times. When you first look at this Latin phrase, 'ex carde,' it doesn't mean much, but it has a deep meaning for all of us who play for him.

It connotes a whole philosophy of sport; more than that a whole philosophy of life, not only to the heart of each individual, but it signifies the heart of a team. Each works not to see his own name in the headlines but to see the name of the team and of Notre Dame pushed forward.

To any of Coach Jordan's teams here at Notre Dame, there is one main objective, to further the glory of the Lady on the Dome. He wants his team to win every game but if it came down to bringing disgrace on Notre Dame to win a game, he would rather lose.

Coach Jordan is not a great teacher of individual basketball skills. He admits that he cannot teach a boy to shoot, or dribble or pass. But he is probably the finest coach in the country when it comes to teaching team play. He works not to build All-Americans but to build All-America teams. He believes that a basketball game is won by five men working together, not by five individual performances. Yet we can't avoid the fact that in some years he has produced some great All-Americans, such as Dick Rosenthal, Jack Stephens, and his greatest, Tom Hawkins. But as he would say, "Five men win a game, not one."

It is difficult to say how one feels toward a man who has been so close to us for four years. We could say that he is a great coach, but this is said of many winning coaches. Before all else, we would call him our friend.

A former player of Coach Jordan, Johnny Dee, now coach of the Chicago-Denver Truckers and formerly coach of Alabama, expressed his opinion of Johnny Jordan after Notre Dame defeated Alabama in the Sugar Bowl. He said, "I hope you go on to win the championship because you are playing for a gentleman."

It was a well deserved compliment coming from a man whose team he had just beaten. But in our opinion one phrase will best express our feeling toward Coach Jordan. He is above all a Catholic gentleman.
THE SEASON IN REVIEW

McCARTHY LOOKS FOR BALL AGAINST BRADLEY
Notre Dame's basketball team stylishly swept its way through a 26-game regular season schedule against the country's finest teams, then bounced Tennessee Tech and Indiana from the NCAA before bowing to national champion Kentucky in the Midwest regionals of the tournament. In all, the Irish won the most victories in Notre Dame's basketball history as they compiled a superlative 24-5 season's record. After a loss to Bradley on Feb. 1, the Jordanmen tallied twelve consecutive victories before their sound defeat by Kentucky.

The Irish opened the 1957-58 season against St. Ambrose on Dec. 3 in the Fieldhouse. In this contest, Notre Dame led all the way, though St. Ambrose closed within three points of the Irish midway in the first half. At this point a field goal by Tom Reinhart and a jump shot by Tom Hawkins pulled ND into a more comfortable margin and from there they went on their way to an easy 82-63 victory.

Four days later the Jordanmen journeyed to Madison, Wis., where they engaged Wisconsin's Badgers in their first road game of the year. The Irish jumped off to an early lead, then weathered a mild Wisconsin uprising in the second half to win handily, 75-53. Hawkins was close behind with 22.
Way up there

The Demons were winning 37-36 when the halftime buzzer sounded in the Fieldhouse but in the final 20 minutes of play it was a different story as Notre Dame strode past a DePaul team, that became riddled with fouls, for a 79-61 triumph. Hawkins again was the Jordanmen's offensive gun as he tallied 26 points.

Notre Dame suffered its third defeat in 13 games against Louisville the next Saturday night as the Cardinals pasted a 94-83 road defeat on the Irish. Coach Johnny Jordan's team never quite recovered from a ten point spurt that sent the hosts ahead at the half, 46-37. The key to the Louisville win was superior rebounding, paced by 6-10 Jerry Dupont's 22 recoveries. John McCarthy's 26 points led the scoring for both teams. Bob Devine was second for the Irish with 20 tallies.

The Irish successfully launched their first of three appearances at the Chicago Stadium the following Saturday by wamping a good Illinois quintet, 81-67. Pom Hawkins showed his hometown 'oiks why he is the greatest scorer in Notre Dame history by sinking 16 fielders and seven free throws for 39 points, the Irish completely dominated play against the Illini, taking a 48-31 advantage at the half and maintaining it throughout the second half. The triumph gave the Jordanmen an 11-3 season's record.

A second half defensive show bottled up the Louisville attack four days later as the Irish scored a revenge victory over the Cardinals in the Fieldhouse, 5-3. ND trailed 34-30 at the half but found the range thereafter to wrap up their twelfth win of the campaign. The Notre Dame scoring was evenly balanced behind Hawkins who set the pace with 25 points.

The Notre Dame victory machine chugged to a sudden, but not entirely unexpected stop, the next Saturday night in the Chicago Stadium, as Bradley's Braves humiliated the Irish 81-70 before a 14,000 gathering. For four minutes in the first half the ND marksmen were unable to find the hoop as they lost a slim lead and Bradley went on to take a 45-33 lead at the half. The basketballers could only muster up a mild threat in the second half, closing the gap to six points, before the Braves took charge again. Hawkins was the star for the Jordanmen as he poured in 29 points.

In their next two games, the Irish maintained their winning streak on the Fieldhouse floor against visiting Canisius and the Air Force Academy. Against Canisius, ND expanded a slim four point halftime lead to a comfortable 71-59 victory. Despite faulty shooting from the free throw line, where they missed 13 attempts, the Irish, the one-two scoring punch of Hawkins and McCarthy, were too much.

On Feb. 8, Tom Hawkins turned in the best performance of his career at Notre Dame as the Irish humiliated an aggressive but small Air Force team, 98-70. The "Hawk" netted 19 field goals, a Notre Dame record, and five free throws for 43 points which tied the Fieldhouse mark set by Lloyd Aubrey in 1956. McCarthy also had a sizeable hand in the rout by tallying 24 points.

The elusive 100 point scoring mark, which no Notre Dame basketball team had ever been able to achieve, became a reality the night of Feb. 10 in the Fieldhouse as the Jordanmen vanquished Marquette, 106-74. The Irish were definitely revenge-minded as they buried the hapless Warriors under a 62-35 halftime barrage and then, with reserves filling in for the varsity the last eight minutes, eclipsed the century mark with 2:21 remaining on Mike Ireland's lay-up. Scoring leaders for the Irish were McCarthy and Hawkins with 22, Devine with 18 and Mike Graney who finished with 17 points.

Butler, which was apparently very anxious to avenge the loss they suffered to the Irish at South Bend, played the Jordanmen on a little better than even terms until midway in the second half when the Irish managed to knot the score at 78-all. With Eddie Gleason's brilliant all-around play sparking the Irish, they finished very strong in the last two minutes to win, 90-81. Hawkins' 33 points made him high scorer in the game.

Defending NCAA champion North Carolina was the basketball team's next opponent. The talented Tarheels opposed the Irish on Feb. 15 at the Chicago Stadium in what was anticipated as the Jordanmen's hardest test of the season.
McCarthy scores against Indiana

The Irish snapped a 36-36 halftime tie with a spectacular surge at the beginning of the final half and never let up as they crushed North Carolina, 89-70. Tom Hawkins, though he was being double-teamed, put the biggest damper on the Tarheels' victory hopes by cashing in 33 points. The triumph set the Irish record at 17-4 for the season.

After their stunning win over North Carolina, the Irish' senior Don Barnett turned the last 20 minutes to pass the 600-point mark in scoring. Senior Co-Captains John McCarthy and Bob Devine were duly saluted, too, by the roaring student body. McCarthy helped out with 17 points and Devine added ten for the Irish.

On the first of March the Irish went after their 21st triumph of the campaign against a rugged Detroit team at their home court. To beat the Titans, who refused to submit to the NCAA-bound Jordanmen. Notre Dame had to soar over the 100-point mark for the second time of the season. Though fan-tastic shooting put the Irish ahead 56-46 at the half, Detroit came storming back in the second stanza to tie it up at 82-all with five minutes remaining. Hawkins, with 25 points, and McCarthy again was the top scorer with 24 points and McCarthy was close behind with 21.

Tech guard blocks lay-in Tennessee Tech, champions of the Ohio Valley Conference, were the Irish' opponents in their first NCAA tournament game. The Golden Eagles put up a strong bid to the favored Irish until early in the second half when Notre Dame finally broke loose and left Tech under a 94-61 deluge. In the game at McAl Memorial Hall at Evanston, III., Hawkins paced the ND attack with 30 points.

With one NCAA victory under their belts, the Irish traveled to Lexington, Ky., where they faced Indiana's Big Ten champions in their first game. Though Notre Dame had whipped the Hoosiers earlier in the season, they were only slight favorites to do it again over the much improved out-of-staters. ND got off to a slow start, trailing 12-6 in the early minutes, before their shooting picked up and they jumped into a commanding 48-37 halftime advantage. Hawkins took the scoring burden from McCarthy who had been carrying it in the first half and led the Irish on to a 94-87 victory. He was the leading scorer in the contest with 31 points while McCarthy totaled 29.

Kentucky, the South East Conference champions were Notre Dame's opponents the next evening before a capacity crowd in their home fieldhouse. It was simply an off-night for the Jordanmen as they were out-played by the Wildcats in every department and went down to a 89-56 defeat.

While the Irish were futilely trying to shake-off the Wildcat' sticky defense, the Kentuckians found the Irish basket an easy mark, rolling to a 43-31 halftime lead and increasing it from there on. McCarthy was Notre Dame's top scorer, with 17 points.

The annual basketball testimonial banquet, which took place last Tuesday night, was a thoroughly entertaining and enjoyable affair. The food was good and so were the speakers.

If you had to single out one predominate theme or idea which ran throughout the banquet, it would have to be the intense respect and friendship gained by Coach John Jordan with those who are associated with him.

Art Morse, the promoter of college basketball in the Chicago Stadium, and assistant director of athletics at Loyola, explained it in part. He said that every basketball team looked pretty much alike. The thing which gave them real identity was their coach. And in some ways this is very true.

Coach Frank McGuire of North Carolina put it another way. "A lot of you people don't realize what a 24-5 season is in basketball today," he said. "There are no longer any have-nots in basketball for everyone has a good team nowadays. Coach Jordan and his team have beaten some of the best in the country, and if they played Kentucky seven times they would beat them in six. It is truly unfortunate that they lost on the night that they played them." This is a fine tribute to Jordan's coaching ability by the man whose team won the National Championship last season, and who was selected as basketball's Coach of the Year for that season.

But perhaps the greatest tribute of all was paid by Coach John Castellani, of Seattle, who was Jordan's assistant coach here for four years. "Jordan treated me like a father," he said. "When things were going rough, he helped me more than I can explain. Whatever success I have had, it was because of Jordan."

Though these are strong words, they express the feelings of all of us. Of course our contact with Jordan was limited by comparison, but we can sincerely say that he is one of the finest men that we have ever met.

He is never too busy to say hello or offer that word of encouragement or help. Everyone is treated with the same friendliness, and this is sometimes the test of a real man, to treat everyone, regardless of station, the same.

Though the banquet was a happy affair, for some of us it was a little sad. It marked the end of the Devine-McCarthy era of Notre Dame basketball. Both of these men have had fine careers. Both have scored over 1,000 points in their three seasons, and Devine holds the record for consecutive games started, 81.

The graduation of these two will leave a great void in the Fieldhouse but they are being replaced by two who fill it quite ably. Gene Duffy and Tom Hawkins have a big job to do next year, for being captains after Devine and McCarthy won't be easy. But they can do it, and maybe next year's banquet will honor Notre Dame's first NCAA basketball champions. We certainly hope so.—M.F.
Nineteen Frosh Basketballers Appear As Solid Nucleus for Future Irish Squads

Nineteen boys played freshmen basketball this year under the direction of frosh coach Jim Gibbons.

Heading the group were John Tully, Bill Crosby and Bill Noonan. Tully, a graduate of Regis in New York City, comes from Palisades Park, N. J. He stands six-foot-seven and plays the center post for the Irish. Although he hadn't played the pivot too much before coming to Notre Dame, Tully has developed a good hook shot with both hands.

Crosby, a six-foot-four guard, is a product of St. Benedict's Prep and comes from Linden, N. J. His best shots are a two-handed set and one-hand jump. Crosby is a fine rebounder, excellent on defense and has good split vision. His good basketball sense means he should play a lot for the Irish in the next three years.

Noonan too, is a guard, standing six-foot-one. He hails from Davenport, la. His best shots are a two-handed set shot and one-hand jump. Noonan is a fine rebounder, excellent on defense and has good split vision. His good basketball sense means he should play a lot for the Irish in the next three years.

Dick Bendall, Schenectady, N. Y., Larry Erickson, Midland, Mich., Dan Hagan, Mexico, Mo., who also plays baseball, Bob Schmidt, Bakersfield, Cal., Paul Schmitz, Drexel Hill, Pa., and Mike White, Chicago, round out the squad.

Bill Chesson Gives His Impressions of...

THE EASTERN SWING

When I learned that I was to travel East with the Notre Dame basketball squad to do the play-by-play of the NYU and Navy games, I was greatly elated. The Irish had so far won 17 out of 21 games and were fresh from an 89-70 victory over North Carolina in Chicago Stadium.

We were to leave from the Fieldhouse at about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon February 19. I arrived with suitcase, camera, and information on the two opponents about 2:30.

The team was just finishing a practice session so during my wait I took a few pictures of the team and talked to Walt Huurnan, senior basketball manager.

At the airport the ticket agent told us that the runways were clear and that above the low hanging clouds the visibility was excellent.

We traveled TWA, with stops scheduled for Fort Wayne, Dayton, and Pittsburgh, before we landed at Newark International Airport.

Once on the plane I sat down next to Co-Captain John McCarthy, who showed his appreciation for my company by immediately falling asleep. Coach Jordan and Mrs. Jordan were across the aisle, and behind them were Devine and Gene Duffy.

We had just left Pittsburgh when the card game started. I was just about off to sleep when I heard someone from up front yell:

“Bill. How 'bout some cards?”

The idea sounded good so I said I’d join them.

We played until the stewardess came by and told us we were approaching Newark.

The view was beautiful. We could see the lights of New York before us, blinking whites, greens and hundreds of other colors.

By the time we got our luggage, called cabs, and finally arrived at the Hotel Commodore it was close to eleven o'clock.

I'm sure that I was the only one there who didn't hit the sack right away. And I did as soon as I got off a couple of postcards.

Rooming with Huurnan had one definite disadvantage. As manager it's Walt's job to get everyone up in the morning. So he rises first and, much against my will, I rose second.

“Getting these guys up is a real chore, so I start early.”

The operator called at nine o'clock and Walt got up and went to work.

“1134, please . . . Tom? . . . Fr. Barry is saying Mass at ten in St. Pat’s. . . . Be in the lobby at a quarter of and we'll all go over together. . . . 921, please . . . Mike? . . . What took you so long? We have to be in the lobby in 15 minutes. . . . Yes, and get Bradtke out of the sack too . . .”

On he went until everyone had been aroused.

Father Barry said Mass in a small chapel way in the back of the Cathedral.

After Mass the team broke up into groups and went to breakfast.

When we finished breakfast, as the team was off until two, we decided to take a walk down 42nd street and see the sights.

As we turned a corner, we ran into Hawkins and Mickey Bekelja coming the other way. They were both carrying packages.

“Where have you two been? . . . What's in the packages?”

“Records. They have a big sale right down the street.”

That sounded good to us so we went up to the next corner and found the shop.

We looked around for about a half hour but couldn't find anything that interested us so we walked down to Grand Central Station, and then, later, we went through the Rockefeller Center.

Five Defending Champions Fight Tonight
In Finals of Annual Bengal Mission Bouts

Five defending champions won their way into tonight’s final round of the Bengal Bouts by winning their semifinal matches last Wednesday in the Fieldhouse. The 16 finalists will tangle tonight in the Fieldhouse for the championships in the eight divisions.

Only one defending champ was eliminated, but that was Pat Healy, last year’s heavyweight winner, in the fight that the crowd liked best of all.

The final bout of the evening and the second bout of the heavyweight division brought the crowd to its feet in thunderous applause at its end. Norm Odyniec, from Greensboro, N. C., and Pangborn, after being floored twice in the first round by Pat Healy from Baltimore, Md., and Breen-Phillips, bounced back to take a unanimous decision from the defending champion.

John Donovan of Chicago and Pangborn Hall took the first bout of the evening on a split decision from Milam Joseph of Dallas and Pangborn. Both fighters struck for the head throughout, and both landed numerous effective blows to the head all through the fight.

In the other semi-final in the 127-pound division, Dennis Landry of Cincinnati, last year’s champ representing Keenan this year, pounded out a unanimous win over Roy Williams of Philadelphia and Keenan.

Leighton Young, an off-campus student from Houston, Texas, took a unanimous decision from Bob Weingart of Cranford, N. J. and Dillon Hall in the opening 159-pound match. In the second bout Ross Franco, defending champ from Napa, Calif., and Farley worked for a unanimous win over Richard Kruegel from Dillon and Racine, Wis.

After a slow first round, Bob Fitzsimons of South Bend moved into the final bout in the 147-pound class by edging Dan McIvor of Detroit and Morrissey, in a unanimous decision. In the second bout, defending champ Ed Ricciuti of Sorin and Waterbury, Conn., hammered out a TKO win over Sam Haffey of Zahm and Cleveland, Ohio, in 1:25 of the first round.

Jerry Wilson of Walsh and Pittsburgh edged Hugh Ball, an off-campus student from Cleveland, Ohio, in one of the night’s most exciting and most evenly-matched fights. There were three knockdowns in the third round alone with Wilson connecting for two of them.

Wilson took the bout by a split decision and advances to the 157-pound finals where he will face William Moore, the defending champion, from Detroit, Mich., and Dillon. Moore took David Miller of Dillon and Houston in a unanimous decision in the last bout before the intermission.

Mike Connor from Detroit, Mich., represented Morrissey and pounded to a unanimous decision over David Cormier from Westbrook, Maine, and Breen-Phillips. Connor had Cormier on the ropes much of the third round.

William Brelsford threw some of the hardest punches of the night in claiming the second TKO of the evening. Brelsford from Sheldon, Wis., and Dillon chased Vincent Distasio of the Bronx and Morrissey around the ring for close to two rounds in the opening 167-pound bout before he was awarded the TKO at 1:55 of the second round.

Frank Nacozy of Pangborn and San Diego, Calif., floored Richard Lombardi of Keenan and Lake Forest, Ill., to win the second semi-final match on a TKO at :48 of the second round. Lombardi got to his feet but was unable to continue.

Joseph Anderson from Cortland, N. Y. and Badin Hall beat Richard DeLametre from Detroit and Farley in a fight marked by clinches. Anderson took this first 177-pound semi-final fight by a split decision.

Jerry Baugh, representing Pangborn and from Austin, Texas, slugged his way to a unanimous decision over John Diaz from Breen-Phillips and Oklahoma City.

Dick Shulsen scored the first knockout of the night with an :18 kayoing of Dave Davin in the first round. Shulsen, from Salt Lake City and Alumni, and Davin, from Chicago and off-campus, tore into each other as soon as the fight started. But Shulsen found an opening and slugged Davin with a solid right cross to the jaw, and that was it.

and Huurman, left me about one to go back to the hotel for lunch and rest.

The rest of the afternoon I toured the NBC studios. I got back to the Commodore just in time for dinner.

I left the dinner table to go to the Garden and set up the broadcast equipment. My vantage point was good, just above the second tier.

In the first game of the double-header, St. Louis University whipped St. John’s of Brooklyn easily.

The crowd, though, was waiting for the Irish. NYU’s student body was there but that was where the Violets support ended. The rest of the crowd was for the Irish.

It was typical Notre Dame basketball; a slow start and a fast finish. Our lead was small at halftime, but in the second stanza we pulled away to win easily, 93-77.

After signing off for the Irish Basketball Network, I went down to the locker room.

When the reporters were finished with Coach Jordan they headed for Hawkins and McCarthy. Gleason, as usual, was the last man out of the showers.

Most of the team stopped for something to eat before going back to the hotel.

We were scheduled to leave from LaGuardia for Baltimore about noon, Friday. So in the usual procedure, Huurman roused the team from slumber, we went to Mass, and after breakfast headed for the airport.

My seat partner for the short hop to Baltimore was Williams.

A bus took us to the Naval Academy where we became subject to the courtesy of the United States Navy.

We stayed in the Naval Academy’s new fieldhouse, where there is plenty of room to accommodate visiting teams.

That week end there was a squash tournament, a wrestling meet, and a rifle and pistol match. So we had plenty of company.

The team held a light workout in the afternoon to get used to the floor.

Friday evening was spent at pool and ping-pong, as the team was confined to the base by Coach Jordan. Graney, Ayotte, Bradtke, and Hawkins held down the pool tables until midnight when it was time for “lights out.”

Saturday morning we were aroused early by our special guide for the week end, Midshipman Third-Class Pete Dun. l

Engineering Open House Slates 'Explorama'; Auto Show, Exhibits Planned for April 25-27

Preparations are well under way for the 1958 Engineering Open House to be held on April 25-27. It was announced recently by the Joint Engineering Council, sponsor of the event. Robert Norris, a senior from Middletown, O., is chairman of the three day affair.

Since its inception in 1952, the Open House has grown until it is the largest of student-managed activities at Notre Dame. The Engineering Open House, aimed at the whole student body and the general public of South Bend, particularly the high school students, presents the Notre Dame engineer and the profession.

ALUMNI DINNER

The Notre Dame Alumni Association will sponsor its annual dinner for graduating seniors in the New Dining Hall at 7 p.m. on April 23.

William Carey, a Notre Dame graduate of 1951, will speak on the transition from student life to career.

'Dimensions' Chosen Theme of Senior Ball

With "Dimensions" as its theme, the Senior Ball, with Harry James' band providing the music, has been scheduled for Friday, May 16, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the Drill Hall.

Bob Duffy, general chairman of the ball, has announced ticket sales will be in the Fieldhouse from 7:45 to 9:30 p.m. on April 15, 16, and 17. Seniors from Alumni Hall will obtain their bids on the 15th, those from Walsh and Fisher on the 16th, and off-campus seniors and those from other halls on the 17th.

The price of the bid is $10. Communion Breakfast tickets, priced at $3, may also be purchased at this time, as well as hotel reservations. Tickets for a dinner dance to be held on Saturday, May 17, at the Erskine Country Club, will go on sale April 18 in the Rathskeller. The price is $8.

On Monday, April 21, late sales will provide a final opportunity for seniors to purchase tickets to the ball. No tickets will be sold after this date.

CAMPUS CLUB ELECTIONS

According to a new Student Senate regulation, all student clubs and organizations must hold their elections within two weeks after the Easter vacation. A list of the newly elected officers must be filed with the Student Senate before May 1.

in general. Last year more than 25,000 persons attended the event.

Norris is in his final year in chemical engineering. A member of the Joint Engineering Council, he is also business manager of the Technical Review and was chairman of the Engineers’ Ball.

He reported that the theme for the Open House this year will be "Explorama." The departmental displays will portray the results of the engineer in searching out and applying better techniques and products for the use of man.

Activities will commence Friday afternoon with special guided tours for high schools in the area. Each department of the Engineering College will have open house with student-constructed projects and industrial exhibits on display.

Saturday will feature an Engineering Show followed by the annual Charter Race. Wearing self-styled togas, and pulling hand-built chariots, representatives from each department will attempt to defeat the Architects, last year's champions. On Sunday there will be an Air Show behind the Aero Building.

During the three days, an Auto Show, featuring experimental cars, will be held in the Navy Drill Hall. WSND will broadcast from the Engineering Lobby on Saturday and Sunday.

The committee assisting Norris in producing the 1958 Engineering Open House includes: Vince Naimoli, business manager; Brian Quinn, air show; Tim Cohan, auto show; Jack Lane, chariot race; Guy Weismantel, displays and tours; Roger O’Neil, engineering show, and Steve Sweeney, outdoor display.

Easter Retreat Plans Made For Gethsemani Monastery

Twenty-nine Notre Dame students will spend the first four days of their Easter vacation attending the YCS sponsored retreat at the Gethsemani Monastery in Trappist, Ky.

The students will leave the campus by bus on Tuesday evening and will attend three days of talks, conferences, and Masses at the Monastery. On Holy Saturday, a bus will take them to Louisville where they can make connection for transportation home.

Vince Carroll has been in charge of the arrangements, assisted by Roy Wessel who managed transportation. Wessel has announced that since the rented bus seats 35, six seats will be available for students who wish to travel to Louisville on Tuesday. Those interested should contact him at 143 Pangborn.

Concert Band Begins Vacation Tour April 5

The Notre Dame Concert Band will start its annual Easter tour on April 5 with a concert at Antonian Hall, Pittsburg, Pa. The 16 day tour will include concerts in Monessen, Pa., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Meriden, Conn., Providence, R. I., Rutherford, N. J., Port Chester, N. Y., Holyoke, Mass., Auburn, N. Y., Canton, O., and Toledo, O.

The 56 man Notre Dame Concert Band is the most widely traveled college touring band in the United States, according to Robert F. O'Brien, band director.

Upon their return from this tour, the Concert Band will present the annual Spring Concert in the Drill Hall, at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, April 17. The Spring Concert will be a varied program of light and heavy selections. Pieces to be featured are Father Hager's Sonatina for Band, and the premiere of the United Nations March by Stolze.

Breen Oratory Contest Set By Sommer for April 21-22

The annual Breen Oratory Contest will be held on April 21 and 22, according to Prof. Leonard F. Sommer, director of forensics. Participants will be required to deliver a seven to ten minute oration of their own creation. The winner will receive a gold medal that is valued at $75.

Interested students should apply to Sommer in Room 344 of O'Shaughnessy Hall. A typed manuscript of the student's talk must be submitted to him no later than April 14.

The Breen Oratory Contest is the oldest forensic event on campus. William Breen, a 1877 Notre Dame graduate, was its founder, the first award being presented in 1883. Last year's winner was Jerry Brady.

Byron Janis Plays April 20 With South Bend Symphony

Byron Janis, an internationally renowned pianist, and the South Bend Symphony Orchestra will appear in the Navy Drill Hall in the final presentation of the Concert and Lecture Series Sunday, April 20 at 4 p.m. Admission is free to the students of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College.

Tickets for the concert will be distributed at the Washington Hall box office on a date to be announced later. Faculty members who do not have Concert and Lecture Series tickets may purchase their tickets at the door.
Military Smoker Plans Set; Cadets to See 'Mr. Roberts'

Members of Notre Dame's three ROTC units will attend the fourth annual Tri-Military smoker to be held in the Navy Drill Hall on Sunday evening at 8. Tickets may be obtained for $.35 at the door.

Arranged by the Tri-Military Council the affair will be highlighted by the presentation of the film Mr. Roberts. Also planned is a competition between the drill teams of the units for the Notre Dame ROTC championship plaque.

Plaques will also be awarded to the Army for winning the basketball championship and to the rifle champions, the Air Force. Refreshments will be served.

Committee chairman for the smoker is Pat Toner.

Law School Symposium Planned for April 18
With Supreme Court As Focal Point of Study

Describing the Supreme Court as threatened by assaults "too serious to ignore," Dean Joseph O'Meara of the Notre Dame Law School recently announced plans for an April 18 symposium here on "The Role of the Supreme Court in the American Constitutional System."

David Maxwell, Philadelphia, Pa., attorney and immediate past president of the American Bar Association, will preside at the symposium sessions, Dean O'Meara said.

Four papers dealing with various aspects of the current controversy regarding the Supreme Court will be given by Dean Eugene V. Rostow of the Yale Law School; Professor Robert A. Leflar of the University of Arkansas School of Law, Professor Sheldon D. Elliot of the New York University School of Law; and Carl McGowan, Chicago attorney and general counsel of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad.

In outlining the scope of the symposium, Dean O'Meara emphasized that the sessions will be concerned with the Supreme Court as an institution. Stressing that the Supreme Court is not above criticism, he declared that "the accusations and clamorous demands that fill the air are nevertheless calculated to weaken public confidence in the court and thus diminish its influence as a symbol and spokesman of the rule of law in an increasingly lawless world."

"Though much of the abuse of the court is purely partisan, a good deal of it," Dean O'Meara contended, "results from a misunderstanding of the Court's function and of the conditions under which it necessarily operates." The symposium, he explained, "will be beamed at people who are honestly mistaken about these matters." The proceedings of the symposium will be published, he added.

Maxwell is a member of the Philadelphia law firm of Obermayer, Rebmann, Maxwell, and Hippel. Educated at the University of Pennsylvania, he is a director of several corporations. From 1945 to 1950 he was co-chairman of the National Conference of Lawyers and Certified Public Accountants.

Rostow graduated from the Yale Law School in 1937, joined its faculty a year later, and became dean in 1955. He served as a State Department advisor from 1942 until 1944 and as assistant executive secretary of the United Nations' Economic Commission for Europe during 1949-50.

Leflar served as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Arkansas from 1949 to 1951. He was educated at the University of Arkansas and at Harvard Law School and has been a faculty member at the former almost continuously since 1928. He was dean of the Arkansas Law School from 1948 to 1954.

Elliot is director of the Institute of Judicial Administration at New York University and secretary of the American Bar Association's section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. He joined the faculty of the University of Southern California, his alma mater, in 1934 and served as dean of its Law School from 1947 to 1952.

McGowan is a member of the Chicago law firm of Ross and O'Keefe. He practiced law in earlier years in New York City and Washington, D. C. He has served as a faculty member and lecturer at the law schools of Northwestern University and the University of Chicago as well as a visiting professor at Stanford University Law School. During World War II he was a special assistant to the Undersecretary of the Navy. He was educated at Dartmouth College and the Columbia University Law School.

Marketing Department Picks Sheffer for April 6-11 Meeting

Loran Sheffer, a senior from Lansing, Mich., and current Business and Advertising Manager of the SCHOLASTIC, has been selected by the Marketing Department of the College of Commerce as the outstanding advertising student at Notre Dame. He will represent the University at Inside Advertising Week to be held in New York April 6-11.

Sheffer's selection was made on the basis of his academic and extracurricular achievements in the field, and his interest in advertising as a career. The award was made by a committee composed of Professors John Malone, head of the Marketing department, Ronald O'Neill and Harry Worthington.

Award winning advertising students from the top 70 colleges of the nation will participate in Inside Advertising Week. They will engage in seminars, tours and conferences and compete for the honor of the "Outstanding Advertising Student in the United States."
New Easter Policy Set
For Campus Libraries

Library Director Victor Schaefer announced that students will be permitted to keep books during the vacation. They must renew them immediately before they leave to avoid the regular fines. This is a change in Library policy.

Divisional Libraries in the Main Library will be closed for cleaning as follows: Humanities Library on April 7 and 8, Social Science Library on April 9, 10, 11, and Business and Economics Library on April 9, 10.

Library hours during the vacation will be: April 1 thru 12—8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; April 4, closed at 12 p.m.; closed April 5, 6, and 13.

Alumni Secretary Schedules
Universal Notre Dame Night

Thousands of alumni and friends of the University will attend local observances of the 35th annual Universal Notre Dame Night during mid-April, according to a recent announcement by executive secretary James E. Armstrong of the Notre Dame Alumni Association.

Dinner meetings will be held in more than 100 cities throughout the country, Armstrong said. This year’s observance, he explained, will spotlight Notre Dame’s new ten year $66,600,000 development program as well as the importance of continuing adult education for Notre Dame men and other college graduates.

New Hall Assignments

Hall assignments for next year were released last Tuesday by The Rev. A. Leonard Collins, C.S.C, dean of students.

Alumni, Walsh, Fisher and Sorin are the Senior halls, while Dillon, Pangborn, Howard and Badin will be Junior. Lyons, Morrissey, Zahm and one-half of Cavanaugh are Sophomore halls with Keenan, Stanford, Breen-Phillips, Farley and St. Edward’s listed as Freshman.

This apportioning of the halls was worked out by the Senate’s committee on hall assignments, headed by Herb Riband, and Father Collins.

Stanford is a freshman hall by the wishes of Mrs. Grattan T. Stanford and Keenan will be the same, since the administration considers them as one unit for administrating purposes.

Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores will be allowed off-campus and they will fill the vacancies in the halls of their respective classes. No Seniors will be in underclass halls, as it is this year.

If Freshman enrollment is greater than expected they will fill the other half of Cavanaugh hall; otherwise there may also be Juniors in the hall.

Students eligible to live in the same hall next year will still have to compete for their rooms on the basis of scholastic averages.

Debate Team Competes
At West Point Tourney

The Notre Dame Debate Team qualified March 15 for the National Debate Championship to be held April 24 to 26 at West Point.

The team won its qualification with a record of five wins and one loss in the 14th annual regional elimination contest, held in Cleveland.

John Whitney, a freshman from Burbank, Calif., and Jack Martzell, a senior from Sleepy Eye, La., represented Notre Dame at the elimination contest. Martzell was named third best debater in the contest.

Today and tomorrow the Debate Team will participate in the Judge Marx Debate Tournament at Xavier University.

Glee Club Concert

Under the direction of Daniel H. Pedtke, the Notre Dame Glee Club will present their annual Spring Concert at Washington Hall on Sunday at 8:15 p.m. Accompanying the Glee Club will be Tom Plofchan and Tom Clifton. There will be no admission charge.

Mass was in the main chapel, which is changed for the various denominations that happen to be holding services. They must have had a dance the night before because several midshipmen were there with their girls.

We ate in the regular dining hall, which is run on approximately the same procedure as ours. One improvement over our system is the fact that they bring the food to you, and they keep bringing it until you can hardly walk away from the table.

As the day wore on toward game time you could notice the tension begin to mount as the team began to think of the game.

We ate an early dinner and the team went back to their bunks to rest before the game. Graney and Hawkins stuck to the pool tables.

"Hey, Tom. Why do you shoot pool before a game?"

"Keeps my fingers agile and relaxes me. How about you?"

"I'm just fighting off mental fatigue."

About seven I took the WSND banner and climbed to my booth high in the rafters. My engineer, Midshipman Second-Class Rod Tomlinson, was already there.

The Irish started cold, just as in the NYU game, but capitalized on Navy's inability to hit from the free throw line and had a twelve point lead at the half.

In the second half, the Middies made a brief surge and cut our lead to six points at one time, but we pulled away again to win it. The final score was 85-64.

When the game was over the players dressed quickly and went into Washington for the night. I visited some friends and met the team at the airport Sunday afternoon.

Ayotte and Hawkins both came in close to flight time and had to hustle to make it.

The flight was a fast one and before we knew it, we were landing at Midway airport in Chicago.

There was little time between planes and we had to move quickly to make connections.

Once aboard the South Bend plane we were greeted with the now familiar call, "Welcome aboard to the Notre Dame basketball team and congratulations."

It was a good swing East.
Rise, and put on your foliage, and be seen
To come forth like the spring-time, fresh and green.—Herrick.

Since spring is with us in her official capacity, this is the time to write joyful poetry and prose celebrating her arrival. For spring is the glad time of year when life begins anew — even Christianity is seen to take cognizance of this.

But for some, spring is the frightful season, "breeding lilacs out of the dead land, mixing memory and desire, stirring dull roots with spring rain." The call to new life is no promise, but a threat — one's apathy must not be disturbed.

But spring will not allow ennui — her energy is somehow contagious. We belong too much to nature to ignore the sudden, exploding forces around us. When spring truly begins, the real world thunders into life. Sara's barrenness is ended, she is with child. Sunlight, birds, buds, and greenness are all united in the symphony of life, the opus commemorating birth and childhood. For spring is the childish season, the time for beginnings.

Spring, though, is harmony, not discord. Fresh sounds, birth sounds, inspire this symphony; sunlight and green unify this canvas. Here there is order, things are in place; but formalization is forbidden. The scene is right, but not at reason's bidding. For spring is the time of living and enjoying, not the time of thinking. Thought is out of place — it does not blend with a green background. Only life is for the living — speculation is for heroes or monsters.

Spring is the season of new life, the season to seize life. And to live, one must love — spring is the season of love. This love is for everything, for grass and trees, for sun and rain, for man and woman. Nor can God be excluded, for the others are only truly loved in loving Him. Love is the center, the basis of man. Without it, he cannot live, he cannot exist; without love, humanity dies. Love is the air of human existence, the foundation of all doing. Here is the cipher that explains all things — it is the key to God Himself.

For God is Love, and the world is an expression of Love. Christ dies and life surrenders, Christ rises and love conquers. The Phoenix takes shape anew, and Light overcomes darkness. Love is triumphant — sterility shatters on fertility. Spring is the time of resurrection, of life renewing itself. Spring demands the decision to live, and this is the choice of love.

Since love is the meaning, since love is always the meaning, love is greater than knowledge. The scale must dip on love's side. Loving, not knowing, is the culmination of man. Knowledge may tempt, but the lover can do no wrong. The power that knowledge brings is as death compared to the strength of love. Spring has the life-force — its energy is love.

Spring being the time for birth and life, it is the season of childhood. Only the young can enjoy this time, but youth is offered to everyone. For spring is not exclusive, it invades the hearts of all. Because youth and spring are together, youth is a green time. Childhood is green in sunlight.

Green in sunlight carries one through time. In my green memory I am a child in a green world, in a green field under warm sun. The field is vast, but it is full, and in its fullness I am happy. I run and walk, I climb hills and wade streams and everywhere I am in green and sunlight. There are shadows too, but they are joyful shadows, belonging to the sun. The sun is pleasant, and I am free in my happiness and happy in my freedom. In my green youth, joy is warm and green — this youth is better than any youth, so delicious that no time has ever been as good. Through the green lens my years vanish and I romp in the green field. I am alone and I am surrounded, but above all I am happy; for the green glass obscures all pain, showing only good. In the warmth and greenness I change and I remain the same — for this greenness is the past and must always remain the past. Alas, I cannot go through the green glass — I must watch from a distance.

Though kept from this green youth, there is another open. Through the greenness of spring youth is offered to all. There is nothing of value to lose; only a confined outlook. The past imposes no rules on the present — one need only hold himself open to the fullness of spring, the fullness of life. Spring bears infinite promise, but it must be taken.

The fullness of spring overwhelms — it satisfies all, lacking nothing. But it is especially a time of sensation — it must be seen and heard, it must be smelled, and felt. Spring is greenness and laughter, it is violets and damp earth, and dirt crumbling in one's fingers. Spring is wholeness, completeness — it is for all of man. But spring is demanding as a lover, requiring the gift of self. Only by delivering oneself without reserve can one know her joys. Custom and habit must be shed to approach her mystery — she demands that her neophytes be garnered only in wonder. When spring has received her suppliants, giving themselves lovingly, she grants access to her mysteries. The richness, the bounty of spring is held for the initiate — only he can lose himself in the mass of sights and sounds and smells. The whole world comes to life and life comes within as well. The initiates are first of all alive, for spring has nothing for a speculative monster or a mere actor. One must truly live and love to belong to spring.

Spring rises upon a barren landscape and transforms it into a drama of birth and life. In the stillness of death, spring introduces the melody of the living. The husk is broken off and the delicious fruit set free.

In spring gray becomes green, and green carries with it all possible hues. There is the green of the grass and the blue of the sky, the green of the leaf and the yellow of the flower, there is green, and pink and yellow and violet, and green again. Gray becomes green and silence becomes song. The song is from birds and laughter and life — we are in a green world but can make songs ourselves. Birth is a song and life is a song — living is the voice of the world, and spring is the concert hall and the melody. Spring is a glad time — her colors are gay colors, her picture the gayest of pictures — and the spring song of the living is a happy song, a song about joy.

But all this drama of spring is dullness itself to the viewer — only the actors enjoy it. For in this role, one plays no role; the players do not play at life, they live it. Only the existing know spring, for them it is their pleasure held. One must make the leap into existence, where joy is to be found. Spring is the season for birth and rebirth, what better time to begin to live?
